About the Author

Jefferson Davis (1808-1889) was an American politician, soldier, and statesman who served as the first and only President of the Confederate States of America during the American Civil War.

Before the war, Davis served in the United States House of Representatives and Senate, and as Secretary of War under President Franklin Pierce. He was a strong advocate for states' rights and opposed the abolition of slavery.

During the Civil War, Davis led the Confederate government and its armed forces. He was captured by Union forces in 1865 and imprisoned for two years. After his release, he returned to Mississippi and worked as a historian and author.
