Squeaky scurried around the kitchen, exploring every nook and cranny. He sniffed at the food on the counter, and he even tried to climb up the refrigerator. But Squeaky's favorite place in the kitchen was the microwave. He had never seen anything like it before, and he was dying to know what it did.

Squeaky jumped up on the counter and peered into the microwave. He saw a big, empty space, and he thought it would be the perfect place to hide. Squeaky crawled into the microwave and curled up into a little ball.

But Squeaky didn't know that the microwave was a dangerous place. When someone turned on the microwave, it started to heat up. Squeaky felt the heat getting hotter and hotter, but he was too scared to move. He just curled up tighter and tighter into a ball.

The microwave kept getting hotter and hotter, and Squeaky started to feel like he was going to die. He tried to scream for help, but no one could hear him. He tried to claw his way out of the microwave, but the door was locked.

Squeaky was trapped.

The microwave kept getting hotter and hotter, and Squeaky's fur started to burn. He felt like he was going to faint. He closed his eyes and waited for the end.

But then, something happened. The microwave stopped. Squeaky opened his eyes and saw that the door was open. He scrambled out of the microwave and ran away as fast as he could.

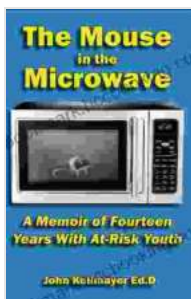

Squeaky was lucky to be alive. He had learned a valuable lesson about the dangers of technology. He knew that he would never go near a microwave again.
